

2017 Solstice Greetings

The longest night of the year is celebrated across most every culture, with strikingly similar mythological themes of darkness turning to the rebirth of light.

In Northern Europe this longest night was known as Mother's Night, a time of powerful spiritual gestation awaiting rebirth on Solstice morning with the expanding light of the new seasonal cycle.

The Celts in Wales believed that on "Modraniht" the goddess Rhianon rode her Celtic Mare with her Magnificent Singing Birds into people's dreams making those dreams come true.

Rhianon had a cultural resurgence in the mid 1970's with this Fleetwood Mac hit:
